

Your vacancies, where wind turbine technicians already are

GoUpTower is the toolbox technicians use between rotations. Its Job Board sits next to their planner, certificates and time sheets, on the website and in the iPhone app. This document explains what a partnership gives an employer, how it works and what it costs.

No contract

no minimum spend, no automatic renewal

A working tool first, a job board second

Technicians open GoUpTower for their daily work, not only when they look for a new role. That is where your offer meets them.

Rotation planner and time tracker

Days on site and at home, hours worked, timesheets.

Certificate wallet

GWO modules, OEM training and medicals, with a warning before each one expires.

CV builder

A technician CV built from the profile and certificates, exported as PDF.

Airport disruption board

Strikes, closures and weather at more than 500 European airports, for the trip to site.

Safety Book and Education Hub

Reference material that works offline in a nacelle.

Job Board

Every open role in one format, with filters for what technicians decide on.

Website

Job Board and Job Portal, and the newest offers on the home page.

iPhone app

The same board in the app, with the same filters and the same order.

Push notification

Technicians who allow notifications are told about each new offer.

What to send us for each offer

The offer desk in your partner dashboard asks for these. Only the title and the location are required; the more you give, the fewer questions we send back.

An example offer. Every offer shows the same facts in the same places: role, place, rotation, contract, environment, turbines, GWO modules and, when you share it, the rate.

The board's filters

Technicians narrow the board by OEM, GWO modules, onshore or offshore and contract type. Your offer is tagged for all of them from the day it is published.

What a partner gets

01 Offers written for technicians

You send the facts and your advert's link. We write the offer in the board's format, in our own words.

03 A dashboard with real numbers

Views on the website and in the app, Apply clicks and the apply rate, by day, over any period.

05 An offer desk and a helpdesk

New offers and corrections in one thread per offer. Something wrong? Open a ticket, quote the offer's ID, and get every answer by e-mail.

02 Applications stay yours

The Apply button opens your careers page, ATS or e-mail. We never stand between you and an applicant.

04 Links, QR codes and graphics

A tracked link per offer, a QR code for posters and site boards, ready graphics for LinkedIn and stories.

06 Sponsorship when a role is urgent

Pin an offer to the top of the board for 7 to 30 days, paid by card, invoiced to your company.

How it works

Partner account

Ask for one; the person who looks after your vacancies registers, and we link the account to your company.

Send your offers

From the dashboard: link, rotation, rate, contract, turbines, GWO modules.

We publish

We write it up, ask if something is unclear, publish, and send you the link.

Track and share

Follow the numbers, share with tracked links and graphics, sponsor when needed.

The partner dashboard counts; it does not profile

- Views, Apply clicks and apply rate for 30 days, 90 days, 12 months or all time
- Each sponsorship against the 14 days before it
- The busiest weekday and hour
- Your offers next to the board's average
- Visits from your link, QR code and graphic, and where they came from
- CSV export for your own reports

What we do not do

- Sell or hand over technicians' CVs, profiles or contact details
- Contact your applicants or act on your behalf
- Publish an employer's text unread, or vacancies we cannot check
- Bind you to a contract, a minimum spend or a renewal

The rules in brief

Publication, not recruitment. GoUpTower publishes information about vacancies. It does not recruit, select or place candidates, and is not party to your contracts with them.

Your vacancy, your responsibility. You confirm that each vacancy is genuine and open, and that it and its details comply with the law, including equal treatment and pay transparency.

Sponsorship. It runs for the days bought; unused days are not refunded when a role is filled early, and may be moved to another of your offers on request.

Data. You see totals only. Technicians' personal data is never shared with partners.
